To Prospective Clients:

I wholly endorse Ron and Marty Cooper of The Cooper Culture for those who are considering their leadership teaching and human behavior support. They were instrumental in helping me form the first Freshman Boot Camp introduction for incoming students.

Their organizational and leadership skills, ability to relate and adapt to people, and mentor others is exemplary. They are committed to helping others.

Ron and Marty reached out to one of our at-risk students in particular who was having some social developmental challenges relating to others, learning in the classroom, focusing on important matters, and having the right circle of friends. With their dedication and commitment, they helped this student through many of the social and learning challenges he was facing. They are committed to work with this student while very effectively relating to and influencing others to develop good leadership traits. They are committed to help this student through to graduation and beyond.

The communication and attention to detail with me and others throughout the school is exemplary. They are each inspirational and motivational with their care and compassion.

They each maintain and live out very high moral, ethical, and social values. They are very dependable. Students and administration officials have learned to respect and trust them through their very effective interaction and leadership skills.

Ron and Marty are recognized at Calvert High and the Calvert County Public School system for their contributions and effectiveness. The Cooper Culture is very astute in assessing needs and customizing solutions to meet those needs.

This company of professionals is very adept in helping organizations achieve and maintain high performance through effective leadership and human behavior attributes. They are very unique in the values and teaching they have to offer their clients.

Sincerely,

Catherine Sutton
